IN THE LOUPE

as 'eye' see it

By Jim Maurer, Secretary

Here is a follow up article about Canadian coins Loonies, Toonies & Maple Leafs... Why Canadian Coins Captivate

By Littleton Coin Company .....

Spanning 3,987 miles (5,525 if you include Alaska) the U.S. – Canadian border is one of the longest in the world. In the early 1990s, I lived near it for a few years. My kids, who were young, called their babysitter's parents mémé and pépé. Because we lived close to the border, occasionally on weekends we'd head north to Montreal. We'd go to an Expos game or visit the Biodome, and feast on Quebec's signature dish, poutine.

But while the kids enjoyed the activities and food, they were positively enthralled by all of Canada's coins.

They wondered aloud what kind of bird was on the “gold” one and how much it was worth. “It’s a loon,” I explained, “and that coin is a dollar, called a ‘Loonie.’”

And did I see the “gold” and “silver” one with a bear...? “That’s a polar bear, it’s found in the arctic, and that’s a $2 coin, called a ‘Toonie.’ Toonie combines two for $2 bill with ‘Loonie’ – it rhymes.”

For years, Canada’s innovative coinage has intrigued both old and young alike. Canada’s Loon dollars were introduced in 1987, and the bimetallic $2 Toonies (which replaced the $2 bill) followed about a decade later in 1996.

However, global enthusiasm for Canada’s coins had really begun a few years earlier, when the Royal Canadian Mint launched a new bullion series.

Maple Leaf Series Begins in 1982!

The landmark Maple Leaf series premiered in 1982 with a 99.99% gold coin released to compete with the gold Krugerrand. By 1985, Canada's new series had captured 65% of the world market! A few years later, the first 1 oz. 99.99% silver Maple Leafs came along. Since then, the Royal Canadian Mint has released a number of 1 oz. silver coins featuring animals – the wolf especially was a hit with collectors.

Following up on the success of silver coins with animals, the mint began the popular 99.99% Silver Wildlife Series in 2011, releasing two designs per year. Each of the coins had a different reverse featuring: the wolf, grizzly, cougar, moose, pronghorn antelope and wood bison, which ended the series in 2013.

Lunar Coins – Collector Favorites!

The Chinese Lunar series, which kicked off in 1998 and now is in its second round, proved to be another favorite – after all, who doesn't like owning a coin that gives them insight into their personality traits. Each animal in the 12-year lunar cycle was represented by a small privy mark on the reverse of the silver Maple Leaf.

A beautiful offshoot to that series is the Lunar Lotus 92.5% silver coin with unique scalloped edges. This series began in 2010, and now celebrates the Year of the Monkey with its 2016 release.

Most recently, the Royal Canadian Mint's innovation has earned it a 2016 CoTY Award for the Best Crown Coin. The final issue in the 2014 colorized silver Maple Canopy series, called Autumn Allure, took top honors in that category.

Even though it's been nearly 30 years since those days when I lived near Canada, those in northern New England are close enough that we often find Canadian coins (which are accepted at par at most places) in our change. With varying series and fresh designs, Canada's coins offer lots of different ways to put a collection together. If you haven't considered these coins, they're definitely worth a look.

SHOW AND TELL:

Keith L. showed a nice selection of jewelry, belt buckles and the like made with coins. It is amazing how creative some people are. Check it out at the next meeting and see if he is wearing any of the items.

David G. always has interesting stuff to show us! This time it was a nice 1858 Canada cent, which was the first year for their large cent. He also told a story, complete with evidence, of a fellow who used to make a living making counterfeit 1944 War nickels.

Richard H. a fairly new member showed off a Blue Ridge Railroad Bond, several engravings (complete with a story) of American Bank Note engravings and a nice Willys stock certificate. Nice to have Richard in the club!

Harold E. seems to have more exonomia than anyone can imagine. This time he had an encased wooden nickel from a past Will County Coin Show. Who said you shouldn't take any wooden nickels?

We would encourage any of you who may have something of interest to your fellow club members to bring it with you to a future meeting and share it.

BREAK FOR SWEETS: We needed some sustenance for the wonderful presentation that was to follow!

MAIN EVENT: A PANORAMA OF CANADIAN COINS

First up was Kevin M who started us off with a wonderful primer on circulating coins from our neighbor to the north. Long ago, they had some French coinage, then England gained control, so they had English coinage. Finally, things evolved to the point that now they have two mints in Canada, Ottawa and Winnipeg. The RCM (Royal Canadian Mint) is recognized as being one of the truly great mints of the world in terms of quality and innovation. Kevin walked us through each series, from the cent through the half dollar. In the process, he touched on the different metals and alloys that were used throughout the years. His favorite coin is the quarter, which is where he spent the most time and where the RCM is very prolific, in some years producing a different circulating quarter for each month of the year.

Jim M. wrapped things up with his favorite denomination, which is the silver dollar. Canada didn't issue these until 1935, when the U.S. was minting the last of their cartwheels. These were made from 1935 through 1967 in 80% silver every year except for a five year break for World War II. During that time there were 6 different circulating commemorative pieces, dealing with Canadian culture and ROYAL happenings. There were also 3 different monarchs represented, Kings George V and VI and Queen Elizabeth II. As each monarch took over, their portrait alternated direction (more or less, as King Edward VIII tried to put a monkey wrench into this tradition).

All in all, there is a lot to like and a lot to collect from Canada.
